

VICE CHANCELLOR'S MESSAGE

Dear readers

KUST is a part of global community and has been striving in technology-driven world to further the interests of humanity through educational, cultural, ethical and environmental measures.

KIMS is an integral part of KUST and has been progressing remarkably well. We aspire to produce medical graduates who, being conscious of their ethical obligations, will serve the nation and humanity at large. Our desire is to improve the quality of life by involving ourselves in academic and research activities. We have been constantly moving in that direction by strengthening our infrastructure base, and sowing the seeds of academic activities to create a better professional environment for students, faculty and staff with an ultimate goal of serving the ailing human beings.

The publication of KIMS's first medical journal is a step towards right direction. I am confident, the faculty and students of the medical institute will go on exploring new avenues of creativity and academic excellence.
